FROM THE RABBI'S STUDY

For the past several years, Temple Beth Hillel has had a wonderful resource in our Rabbinic Intern program. It enables a young adult the opportunity to see what happens behind the scenes at Temple. It also provides additional support staff. The rabbinic intern accompanies me at many functions and is available to sit in on many committee meetings.

This year, the rabbinic intern is Brian Hughes. Brian grew up at Temple (son of Robert and Ann Hughes) and is a recent graduate (with high honors) from Harvard University. He is planning on attending Boston University Law School in the fall. He has been active in the Jewish community while in college.

He has particular interest in doing handyman work under Joe Alpert and the House Committee. He also is looking to coordinate summer educational opportunities. Two things he is looking into is a one week program, from 9:00 to 3:00 Monday through Friday, for children with a Jewish component and emphasis on activity. The other is an adult or family overnight.

If you have any interest in these, or with communicating with Brian, you can email him at hughesbrianj93@gmail.com or called at (860) 716-6676.

SHAMASH SPOTLIGHT

In this month's Shamash Spotlight, I want to do something a little bit different. I'd like to take a moment and recognize our Rabbi, Jeff Glickman. That might seem a bit unorthodox, since this column is meant to focus on volunteers in our community. Some folks might argue that helping our community comes with the job, since he's our Rabbi and our spiritual leader. I would say, however, that part of my intent with this column is to recognize anyone that goes above and beyond. I believe that Rabbi does that often. I believe also that when you've read about how he has stepped up to help our congregation over the past couple of months, you'll agree that he has gone above and beyond again.

Many members help the congregation in one way or another, often in the way that they are most capable. There are those that volunteer their time, skills, and effort. Others have less time to give, but can contribute in a financial sense. Rabbi Glickman, particularly in the last couple of months, has done both.

This isn't a particularly new thing. Over the years, he's given up countless hours of his personal time to this congregation. In the short time I've been a member of this community, I've completely lost track of the number of times that he has cut a vacation short, or returned to us early from a family event to deal with an emergency, sickness, the passing of a loved one, or (pg. 10)

TORAH PORTIONS

Balak - Numbers 22:2-25:9 —This week's Torah reading tells the story of how Balak hires the occult prophet Balaam to lay a curse on Israel. Balaam meets resistance from G-d, has a conversation with his donkey, and ends up blessing Israel instead of cursing them.

Pinchas - Numbers 25:10-30:1 —In this Torah portion, G-d makes a covenant of peace with Phinehas and his descendants, orders a second census, settles questions about inheritance, appoints Joshua to succeed Moses, and lists the sacrifices for the appointed times.

Mattot/Massei — Numbers 30:2-36:13 —Numbers 30 discusses the laws of vows and oaths. Numbers 31 tells the story of Israel's war with Midian. Numbers 32 relates the story of how the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of Mannaseh came to inherit the land east of the Jordan River. Massei is the end of the continuous narrative of Torah that began in Genesis with the creation of the universe. In it we find a list of the encampments from Egypt to the plains of Moab. We also find instructions for apportioning the land, as well as the specifics regarding the borders of the land. While explaining the land and its borders, Moses introduces the laws of the cities of refuge and more inheritance laws.

Devarim - Deuteronomy 1:1-3:22 —The book of Deuteronomy is dominated by Moses' farewell address to the children of Israel as he urges them to remain faithful to the covenant and prepares them for entering Canaan. During the course of the book, Moses reviews the story of the giving of the Torah at Sinai and the trip to the Promised Land, reiterates several laws of Torah and introduces new laws.

Va'etchanan - Deuteronomy 3:23-7:11 —The portion completes the historical prologue of the Deuteronomy covenant document and begins a rehearsal of the stipulations. Part of that rehearsal is a repetition of the Ten Commandments and the famous first passage of the Shema: Deuteronomy 6:4-9.

AUGUST 2016 ISRAEL TRIP

The next TBH mission to Israel will be a crazy fun family experience. Summer in Israel is hot, but beautiful. From August 8 to August 18, 2016, we will find all of the amazing spots in Israel to jump in and cool off. This visit will be customized according to our participants, and the goal is to offer a 'reasonably' priced trip.

If you have a simcha that you would like to celebrate in Israel, let us know, and we are happy to make the arrangements. Mindy Glickman is currently finalizing the itinerary and pricing. Please let her know if you are interested.

other life events. By contract, he only gets one day off each week...Monday. Still, how many committee, board, or other meetings has he attended on a Monday night because that's the only time a majority of those folks can make it? If you see Rabbi at a meeting or event on a Monday, it's because he recognizes that everyone there is a volunteer, so he volunteers, too. In the past couple of months, in addition to his usual slate of meetings, he's attended a number of Religious School Future, Music Future, and individual meetings with me and other congregants when he would normally be off work, as a volunteer.

As if that extra volunteering wasn't enough, he's contributed financially to the congregation over the years. He's done it in the form of direct monetary contributions, postage for mailings, paper for the office, and copies of the games he's designed for us to sell at events or in our gift shop. In the last two months, he's truly stepped up financially on our behalf. As the budget committee was trying to finalize the upcoming budget, he made an offer to help offset the deficit. He offered a matching contribution against what the members of our board pledged. While the final numbers are not in yet, I am confident that the board's contribution will lead to him contributing his maximum match of $3,000.

Rabbi wasn't done yet, though. He saw the struggles that our Disbursements Treasurer, Joel Goldfarb and I went through in the last few months to juggle accounts and collect enough revenue to get through this fiscal year. He had mentioned to me ways that he could potentially take some unpaid leave as part of his sabbatical, which would help reduce the deficit for the upcoming fiscal year. I was grateful for his offer and told him I would consider it. At the time, I had more immediate financial concerns. We had one more month to get through, but with the new fiscal year beginning in July and the new Finance committee on the job, I knew we'd get the reprieve we needed to work out the deficit over a number of months. I brought a tentative suggestion to him just before a board meeting so it could be approved if he was willing. The end result is that Rabbi agreed to forego his salary for the month of June and take four weeks of furlough time over the next 12 months. What does that mean financially? That's the equivalent of writing approximately a $10,000 check just when we needed it. If that isn't going above and beyond, I don't know what is.

So, just as I've asked you to thank other volunteers over these last few months, when you see Rabbi around, please say thank you. I'd like to take a moment right here to do the same. Thank you, Rabbi Glickman.

TBH President*
